ost interesting feature of the official fielding averages of the American League for the 1921 season, printed McInnis, the first baseman who the other day was traded by the Red Sox to the Indians. In 152 games McInnis was guilty of only one error-a record unattained in the major leagues. It is set down that Stuffy had 1549 putouts and 192 assists, and an average of .999.

The average is two points better than the old record of .997 set by Chick Gandil of the White Sox in that mem rable season of 1919 which led to that orable season of 1919 which led to that still more memorable world series between the Reds and the White Sox. In the National League the record stands at 396, and was made by the peerless Frank Chance with the Cubs in 1919. In the matter of chances Mc-Innit's record falls far below the record. Jiggs Donohue of the White Sox had 1986 chances in 1997 and Fred Tenney of the Giants had 1741 chances in 1998.

McInnit's lone error came on the afternoon of May 30 in Philadelphia, when he dropped a throw. The Athletics had beaten the Red Sox in the morning by 8 to 1 and they repeated in the afternoon by 2 to 1 in a battle between Russell and Rommel, the Mackman giving only two hits. Russell also was guilty of a misplay, and so was Brazill, the Philadelphia first sacker.

Everstt Scott, the new Yankee shortstop, combined with McInnis to help the Red Sox keep in the fore in fielding for the sixth successive season, and tha club record, we believe, is another

Red Sox keep in the fore in fielding for the sixth successive season, and the club record, we believe, is another mark. No other major league outfit has been the fielding leader for so many years in a row. Scottic, with an aver-age of .972, came mighty near the major league record, which he set in 1918 with .976. Eddic Collins's .968, which tops the records of the second basemen, is over-shadowed by the standard established by the great Larry Lajole in 1906, when he fielded for .991 with Cleveland.

The fans of New York are sorry to see Peckinpaugh go. He always was a gentleman, on and off the field—always gave the best he had. His best was high class, too. Peck had the misrotune to become the storm center in so far as the management of the Yankees was concerned. He never started the supprisings against Miller Huggins himself, but unwise friends took peculiar means of putting his candidacy to the fore and urging his managerial qualities on the owners of the club. 'Champion Wrecker,'

Says Johnson of Frazee

B OSTON, Dec. 22.—"The champion wrecker of the baseball age" is the characterization of Harry H. Frazee, president of the Boston Americans, attributed to Ban Johnson, president of the American League, by a local newspaper. The quotation was printed to-day in connection with a story on the recent transfers of Red Sox to the New York and Cleveland cluba, with the statement that it was President Johnson's answer to a telegram asking him for his opinion of the deats.

BREDEMUS AMONG

Former Athletic Champion, 'Pro' at Del Rio, Plans Corpus Christi Course.

By KERR N. PETRIE.

John Bredemus, who succeeded to the all around athletic championship of the United States when Jim Thorpe, the Initan, was declared a professional, and who learned his golf at Van Cortlandt Park, has been in Corpus Christi laying out a golf course. John is profes-sional at the San Felipe Country Club of Del Rio, Tex., and is making quite name for himself down that way, by all reports, both as a maker of records and courses. In addition, the old athletic star also is finding time to strike a blow or two on behalf of his brother professionals up North. At present the boys are giving John a lot of credit for the arrangements for the big open tournanent which is to be staged on the public links at San Antonio early in February.

The original intention of the promoters of this event was to have the tournament late in February, or even in March. As this would have been too close on the calendar to some of the Florida tournaments, leaving the professionals the jump all the way back from San Antonio and with no time to purticipate in the events which also had been spoken of for New Orleans and Houston, there was a strong probability of the negotiations falling through until Bredemus took a hand. John had the date of the San Antonio meet set for February 2, 3 and 4, and he now is working hard on Houston and New Orleans. He writes to say that he has high hopes of getting these organizations to change their dates so that the tourneys will begin on February 11 and 18 respectively instead of February 21 and March 4.

Among the minor colleges the sensation thus far has been the great work of the Connecticut Aggies, who have defeated Harvard and several other major fives and are reputed to be as fast as any in the country. The N. Y. U. and C. C. N. Y. fives also are reported to be high class. They will meet in March with the city intercollegiate title at stake.

The Case of Peckinpaugh.

Roger Peckinpaugh declares that he was made the "goat" in the trade between the Yankees and the Red Sox. Roger, naturally, is greatly chagrined over being traded from a pennant winner to a second division club, but we cannot see where he was made the "goat." It may be that the fans of Boston were the "goat." It may be that the fans of Boston were the "groat." It may be that the fans of Reston and obtained a greater fielder in exchange. The New Yorks got a man who is likely to last longer than the Ragah. There is little sentiment in professional baseball. It's all cool calculation, The Giants proved that when they traded George Burns to the Reds. The game—the standing of the clubs and the batting and fielding averages—waits for no man.

Something else to them.

HARVARD AND DARTMOUTH.

It will be good news to Boston that Harvard and Dartmouth have decided to resume relations on the football field.

Dartmouth probably will not give the Crimson the battle that such an eleven as Pittsburgh would furnish, but this is a renewal of a contest which used to be one of the football features of the season.

And from a financial standpoint it will leave little to be desired. The country around the Hub is crowded with Dartmouth alumni and rooters and the game is sure to bring out a stadium full of enthusiasts.

The series saw Thomas Coward, team the Metropolitan Class A team championship. They made a clean sweep of their matches with the Crescent Athletic Club squad on the Yale courts and in so doing played far more convincingly than early in the season, when they met their only defeat at the hands of the Harvard Club title holders. Four of Yale's five victories were scored without the loss of a garre yesterday.

A month western Reserve has been assigned. There is also a strong possiblity that the Army game will be played on December 2 rather than November 18, and in that case a game will be played on December 2 rather than November 18, and in that case a game will be played on December 2 rather than November 18, and in that case a game will be scheduled for the Saturday just before the final contest.

And from a financial standpoint it will leave little to be desired. The country around the Hub is crowded with Dartmouth alumni and rooters and the game is sure to bring out a stadium full of enthusiasts.

A meeting between Harvard and Pittsburgh would have been one of the big games of the year from a different angle. Warner's men would have been obliged either to point a little for such a battle or take a solily good licking. Harvard is one team which generally can be expected of the country with the sure to rise to an emergency—witness the Penn State and Yale games—so Pitt at Cambridge would have provided an encounter worth traveling far to see.
